Stephen LoGiudice Joins Sobel & Co.

Livingston, NJ. On August 1, 2010, Stephen LoGiudice joined Sobel & Co. as the Director of their Risk Management and Compliance Regulatory Services Group. Steve is particularly well suited for this role because of his expertise and skills in risk based audit and internal controls. He gained a depth of experience working for two large regional and national organizations where he was responsible for all aspects of risk and control analysis, project management, and report presentation. Steve broadened his horizons even further by spending the last four years as the Chief Audit Executive (CAE) of a publicly-traded company with revenue in excess of $190 million annually.

“Our clients and their stakeholders have the confidence that comes with knowing their assets are protected,” noted Alan Sobel, Managing Member of the firm. “We are pleased to be able to offer a broad menu of internal controls services, all designed to help clients strengthen their control environment and bring them peace of mind they need in today’s competitive and challenging marketplace.”

Steve’s history of performing financial and operational audits and identifying and utilizing industry best practices brings added value to the firm, along with his of knowledge of process issues and documentation gained while serving a variety of industry sectors, including financial institutions, pharmaceutical corporations and technology companies. His formal training in risk-based auditing allows him to be at the cutting edge of issues resulting from compliance with the Sarbanes-Oxley Act.

Sobel & Co. has been serving middle market, family-owned businesses since its inception in 1956. In addition, it has always been one of the leading firms providing the services that are most critical for the business community. As such, having Steve LoGiudice as a part of their business advisory consulting practice is just further testament to their commitment to address all the critical issues facing their clients.
